csv file for an Agent that takes several minutes to generate. We have a valid reason to try to speed up the process as we are generating more than 5 million .csv files, but we are unable to modify the source code. Is there a way that we can streamline this process without modifying the source code? A: I think you need to break the line down into smaller chunks and split each file at the end. For example, break the line into: line1 = "ccc" & ccc & "1" & ccc & "1" & ccc & "1" put that into a string, remove the unnecessary characters (one space is not necessary at the end) put that into a line loop through each line. Each line is converted to a string and you will split at the " & " stream the output (although I wouldn't recommend this). Q: How to open a file from a web browser and to be able to interact with the file by interacting with web browser I have to open a file (an url) from a web browser and to be able to interact with the file by interacting with web browser. I have seen such apps: 1) AVD 2) This Thanks! When the user opens the URL that you are going to load inside the browser you can access all the files available on the user's disk through the Activity. A sample code is as follows final String file = "file:///sdcard/file.zip"; final String url = new StringBuffer(file).append(".zip").toString(); Intent intent = new Intent(Intent.ACTION_VIEW, Uri.parse(url)); intent.setType("/"); startActivity(intent); in the above code, the file.zip is the file that you want to access. In this you can add the functionality to copy, open, rename and delete. Hope it helps. Why don't the rich pay their taxes? It seems to me that people who earn more than a million dollars a year or more, have a high enough income that they don't really need the $100,000 or $50,000 refund they get from the IRS, or that they can pay for the reduced-rate mortgages, better schools, etc. 82157476af
